

CHINA PRESENTS STUMBLING BLOCK

CITY WILL BE DECORATED FOR MARSHAL FOCH

Decorating Company Engaged to Decorate Downtown Streets and Auditorium

CITIZENS CALLED UPON

Asked to Show French Tri-Color on Occasion of Visit of the Marshal Here

Civic organizations of the city have joined to make the visit of Marshal Foch—first soldier of the world—to Bismarck, Sunday, a great tribute to the chief of the allied armies in France.

The Commercial Club, Rotary club and Town Criers are cooperating with the Legion. A decorating company has been engaged to place decorations at the station, on downtown streets, on the line of march of the parade and in the Auditorium. When Marshal Foch arrives at 11 a. m. Sunday he is expected to be hailed by thousands of people from all parts of North Dakota.

An announcement by the committee says:

"The citizens of Bismarck are urged to turn out en masse to welcome Marshal Foch next Sunday. Everywhere the Marshal has been received his welcome has been enthusiastic and vociferous. Though Bismarck perhaps can not hope to equal the receptions staged by large cities, it can, however, demonstrate in a material manner her enthusiastic appreciation of the services Marshal Foch, the world's greatest military genius, has rendered the citizenship of America. Never before has Bismarck had an opportunity to welcome so great a personage and when this hero comes her streets should resound with cheers.

The civic organizations, Commercial club, Rotary club, and Town Criers are cooperating with the Legion to make Bismarck's reception of Foch the biggest event the city has seen and tentative arrangements warrant a prophecy that Foch will have ample reason to remember Bismarck, the smallest city he will visit in the United States. Merchants and citizens are urged to decorate buildings and homes to harmonize with the decorations which will be placed along the line of march of the parade. A decorating company will furnish the decorations and its representative will be in the city Saturday prepared to supply private decorations if desired. French flags should be conspicuous and many firms unable to obtain the Tricolor are dyeing material and making them. It is requested that French flags be displayed in the residence district because Marshal Foch will be taken for a drive around the city.

Persons who do not have the French flag to display at their homes can procure materials and easily make one.

LEMKE PAYS UP HOME BUILDERS BEFORE LEAVING

Explanation Given As To Why There Was More Than $4,000 State Money in House

Former Attorney-General Lemke made settlement in full with the homebuilders association before leaving office, it was announced today. A deed was given to Mrs. Lemke for their home in Fargo.

Friends of Mr. Lemke in various parts of the state put up funds to cover the transaction, taking a first mortgage on the home themselves, it was stated, so that he would have no further dealing "with either the association or the L. V. A. politicians."

The house, it was stated, was estimated to cost $7,500 to $8,000 when construction was started, outside of brick and tile purchased by the builder. A statement by Mr. Lemke's friends said:

"In the latter part of July the balance due the association was $4,000 and, though Mr. Lemke repeatedly refused the management of the association not to allow Mrs. Lemke's indebtedness to the state to exceed this amount, on October 23 he was notified that, owing to an unexpected and other adjustments made on the house, there was due the association $9,271.53. This amount Mr. Lemke promptly paid for Mrs. Lemke on November 22 and she received the deed for the house on the following day, clearing her of all indebtedness in advance for some time still to be completed on the house."

The total cost of the house was between $20,000 and $22,000.

NEW BUILDING GIVES ST. MARY'S ADDED FACILITIES FOR PUPILS

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL, SHOWING NEW ADDITION.

(By a Member of St. Mary's Faculty.)
St. Mary's School and Convent contains at the present time twelve class rooms with an attendance of four hundred children.

The new building, dedicated Sunday, is equipped with an up-to-date gymnasium and shower baths. The gymnasium will be opened for the use of the children as well as for the Knights of Columbus as soon as the Knights arrive, which is furnished by the K. C.

The class rooms are according to strict regulation, well lighted and well ventilated. A very attractive feature in the new building are the spacious and bright corridors, which contain the cloakrooms.

Since the building was completed St. Mary's offers a full high school and commercial course.

A sidewalk twelve feet wide leads from Broadway to the entrance of the school.

Plans were made by Architects Reginald & Leonard of Mandan, who also donated the two beautiful stained windows over the entrance. One window representing Christ blessing the children the other the Blessed Virgin, the Patroness of the School.

The new building is absolutely fire proof and was constructed by the Collwell-Long Company of Minneapolis, who deserve high credit for both first class material and most satisfactory work.

Cost $61,000
The cost of the building will approximately be $61,000.00.

The auditorium as well as the stage have been remodeled into a very comfortable and pleasant hall, where the different organizations of the parish will hold their meetings, and where during the year several entertainments will be given.

This new school is a strong proof of the growth of the Catholic population in this city, and at the same time represents the sacrifice which the people bring for the education of their children, the future parishioners.

Old timers will remember the struggle which St. Mary's had to go through and are pleased to see the splendid work at the present time.

St. Mary's Parochial School saves the city of Bismarck yearly between $20,000 and $25,000.

IRISH PARLEY NEARS CRISIS OFFICIALS SAY

Ulster Attitude Cause of Serious Split in Conference on Basis For Peace

CRAIG SEES LLOYD GEORGE

Sinn Fein Delegates Go To Dublin to Confer with President De Valera

London, Nov. 25.—(By the Associated Press).—As Premier Craig of Ulster went into conference with Prime Minister Lloyd George today it was admitted officially that the Irish peace negotiations had reached a grave and critical stage.

A prominent member of the Sinn Fein bore this out. "The situation is too serious for talk," he said. "As our Griffiths, Michael Collins and George Duffy (the Sinn Fein delegates) have gone to Dublin to take counsel with Mr. De Valera and the Irish Birmann cabinet and to receive instructions as to the attitude they are to adopt. They will return to London Saturday night to meet Mr. Lloyd George after he has received Sir James Craig's reply."

Lloyd George's Position
At today's interview Mr. Lloyd George was unable to give Ulster assurance that even if he agreed to his proposal the Sinn Fein would admit the point of allegiance to the King as King of Ireland. Such admission has been refused by the Dail Eireann representatives who are declared to view Ireland's position solely as that of an independent state which, however, might make treaties with the other states of the British empire and probably even acknowledge the King as the president of a federation of free states.

This is nothing like the settlement the British government have in mind and it appears that if the Sinn Fein maintains its attitude the negotiations must be broken off with the resumption of warfare an immediate possibility.

CROWN PRINCE IS DESIGNATED JAPAN REGENT

Follows Reports of Illness of Emperor Yoshitito Circulated for Year

Tokio, Nov. 25.—(By the Associated Press).—Crown Prince Yoshitito has been designated regent of Japan.

Designation of Crown Prince as regent of Japan follows reports which have been in circulation for about a year that Emperor Yoshitito was in bad physical condition. A dispatch to a Honolulu newspaper in May of last year reported that he had suffered a mental and physical breakdown.

Early last month a rumor that he was dead circulating in Tokyo and the imperial household in denying it at that time stated that he was so ill it was feared he could not recover.

Southwestern County Now To Be In Fine Shape

Hettinger county has sold $95,000 of bonds to the Wells-Dickey company of Minneapolis, and will be in a position to pay up all outstanding warrants, according to John Mehner, county commissioner, in Bismarck today. The county sold the bonds at 99 1/2, they bearing 6 per cent interest. Practically all of the proceeds of the bond sale will be used in paying off existing indebtedness to citizens of the county.

Mr. Mehner said the county now will be in splendid shape financially. He came to Bismarck with his son, Emil, who has entered a hospital for treatment.

HUMAN LIFE TO REACH AVERAGE OF 100 YEARS

New York, Nov. 25.—One hundred and fifty-three years—more now, or in 2074, health conditions in this country will be so good that the average person will live 100 years, according to several Red Cross statistical experts.

These statisticians based their 100-year idea on what may be called passing out performances. For instance, in 1910 in New York persons died at an average age of 35 and in 1920 they shuffled along into the next world at an average age of 39.

FARM LOANS TO BE MADE SOON BY STATE BANK

New Administration Announces Intention of Putting Department in Operation

PROBING BILLS ALLOWED

Steen Refuses to Pay Bills Allowed by Auditing Board on Last Afternoon

The farm loan department of the Bank of North Dakota will be put into operation as quickly as possible as one of the first steps of the new administration. The department was reorganized when the sale of bonds was first announced and making of loans since the election.

Stating that there is great need for farm loans and great disposition on the part of the new administration to aid farmers Governor Nestos said today that the opening of the farm loan department and selection of a manager for it are among the first considerations of the administration.

The new industrial commission places selection of a manager of the Bank of North Dakota, secretary of the Industrial Commission, and the manager of the farm loan department as important matters to be settled as quickly as possible. P. W. Cathro, manager of the bank, has resigned. He spent sometime with the new commission going over the records in the bank.

The allowance of numerous bills on the afternoon preceding inauguration, including bills for the sale of bonds, will be scrutinized by state officials before being allowed by Treasurer John Steen. He has announced he will refuse to pay the bills at this time and Attorney-General Johnson will investigate them. The bills included $27,999 expenses for George F. Webb and $20,000 compensation for Horace E. Davis, said to have been in charge of the New York office of the Bank of North Dakota. Over $2,000 of bills from the Hotel Biltmore were included.

Cathro Offers Aid
The scores of independent legislators, supporters and personal friends of the candidates who were here for the inauguration began to drift back home Wednesday night, many trying to reach home in time for Thanksgiving dinner.

Only one official act marked the first day of Governor Nestos in office. He directed Adjutant General Fraser to proceed to Fargo and return with Marshal Foch to Bismarck Sunday.

F. W. Cathro, manager of the Bank of North Dakota, visited Governor Nestos following the inauguration, offered his resignation and assistance to the new administration in ascertaining the state of the state's business.

Sveinbjorn Johnson, attorney general, in a brief statement said: "There are several important cases pending that are of vital interest to the state. I have assistants in securing the services, as assistants, of such splendid men and attorneys as Geo. F. Shafer, of Willington, and Charles Simon, of New England. These and other matters will be given immediate attention and the interests of the state will not suffer while the process of transition is going on.

With the co-operation of the good citizens of the state, so favorably pledged us in upholding and enforcing all laws, we are confident that the new administration will succeed. Our task is that of reconstruction and we face the tasks before us with malice toward none, but with a simple resolution to do our duty under the law as best we may."

Joseph A. Kitchen, commissioner of agriculture and labor, said: "We desire co-operation of everybody within the state and we will be glad to receive comments as to utility and usefulness of what we will be able to accomplish in the future and expect to have close communion with different farming organizations with the state (Continued on Page 3)

GIVE APPROVAL ON HIGHWAY TO THE NEW BRIDGE

Secretary of Agriculture Approves Federal Aid For the Project

DIRT ROAD NEXT YEAR Under Proposal Dirt Road Would be Constructed Next Year, Surfaced Year Later

Approval of federal aid for a road from the end of the paving in Bismarck to the new vehicular bridge over the Missouri river has been made by the government, it is announced by W. H. Robinson, state engineer, in a letter to the county auditor.

Under the proposal a dirt road would be built next year, to be surfaced the following year, in satisfactory manner by the county and the state. The letter of the chief engineer says that "the Secretary of Agriculture approved North Dakota project statement No. 136 involving the improvement of one mile of the National Parks Highway in Burleigh county, at an estimated cost of $23,100.00, federal aid being requested to the extent of 50 per cent."

"The secretary made his approval subject to the further condition that the highway department will agree that within a reasonable time after completion of the project as an earth road, it will place, or cause to be placed, thereon an adequate type of surfacing and that a clause to this effect be incorporated in the project agreement."

The proposed road would be from the end of Main street to the bridge, passing under the Northern Pacific tracks.

The county commissioners, it is stated, have sufficient funds left over from the bridge fund to pay for the county's share of the surfacing.

LEGION COMMITTEE COMPLETES ITS PROGRAM FOR RECEPTION OF FOCH

HONOR FOCH

Marshal Ferdinand Foch, called the greatest soldier in the world, will be Bismarck's guest Sunday. The committee representing civic organizations which is arranging for decorations announces it has made arrangements with a decorating firm to provide decorations for business houses at a very low price. Every resident of the city is asked to decorate his home with the American flag and French tri-color.

Bismarck is the smallest city Marshal Foch will have visited. The committee wants to make the reception one the Marshal will remember.

WANT PEOPLE TO SHOW TRI-COLOR AND AMERICAN FLAG ON EVERY STREET—MAYOR URGES RECEPTION RIVALING FIRST ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATION—ASK SCHOOLS CHILDREN OUT

The Bismarck-Mandan American Legion committee in charge of the reception to Marshal Foch announces plans in detail in the following statement:

"Members of the American Legion committee of Bismarck and Mandan in charge of the visit of Marshal Ferdinand Foch to Bismarck appeals to every citizen of Bismarck to do his part to give the great war hero a big welcome in the only city in North Dakota he will visit.

"We want to see flags on every house and people on the streets, of the line of escort, Main, Third and Broadway to the Auditorium, headed by the Elks' band. The Bismarck and Mandan Posts of American Legion with the boy scouts will act as escort to the Marshal from the N. P. station to the Auditorium. The Auditorium will be open at 10:30 a. m. The Legion American Legion will have seats on the stage, the Woman's Auxiliary and War Mothers will have reserved seats as well as the Choral Society.

"Walter Sather, chairman of the local committee, and commander of the Marsh Spetz Post No. 1, said today: 'Marshal Foch will arrive in Bismarck Sunday morning, November 27, at 11 a. m. He will be in Bismarck until 12:30 p. m. But during that time Bismarck must give him a rousing reception. We want lots of noise, cheering and waving of flags, from every person on the streets. It is our duty to the man as a distinguished guest. It is ever more our duty because it was his indomitable spirit and strategy that broke the German offensive and gave our armies victory. We cannot neglect one opportunity to do him honor.'

Reception and Carnival
"Mayor A. P. Lenhart says that 'this is the spirit and that we should give Marshal Foch a great reception and carnival, rivaling the first Armistice day in noise and color and happiness; that is the only sort of reception that should be given. It is the kind that means the most. We want all our citizens to take a part, and get behind this, carry a flag and wave and cheer the Marshal, the colors of France if possible, if not our own.'

"Autos will be provided for the party on the special train; open carriage for the Marshal, if a pleasant day. The escort will leave the station march up main, down Third to Broadway and then to the Auditorium where a short program will be held, and it is expected the Marshal will say a few words. Philip R. Bangs, commander of the American Legion of North Dakota, will preside. The National Commander, Hartford MacNider will be with the party and will also address us; Governor Nestos and Mayor Lenhart will occupy seats on the stage and the Governor will be asked to welcome the Marshal to North Dakota. The Indians with tomahawk will put something unusual over for the Marshal. The Boy Scouts will be asked to help in the reception and escort. The full enrollment of Boy Scouts in the city has been called out for a demonstration in honor of the great visitor.

Show French Tricolor.
"A big showing of flags is urged—tricolor ribbons, French flags. Here is the Tricolor—and will fill the need: Ordinary red, white and blue striped American flag, bunting, turned upside down will form the French tricolors of blue, white and red.

"Auditorium doors will be open at 10:30 a. m. according to plans completed today. The stage will seat the members of the American Legion, part of the lower floor will be reserved for the War Mothers, Auxiliary and Choral Society. The balance of the lower floor, the balcony and gallery will be open to the general public.

"The School Children—We want all of them out Sunday morning to help in this reception. A place will be held in front of the Federal building for this purpose, and the Marshal is particularly anxious to see and hear the children. Children of all public, private and parochial schools are urged to take part in the demonstration at the Federal building.

"I want every man who has a uniform to wear it," Chairman Sather said in his appeal, "for the glory of the American Army and the honor of our city."

The War Mothers' chapter urges that people lift their hats when Marshal Foch passes along the line of march and give him a rousing welcome with cheers.

SPECIAL FROM WILTON.
The Soo road announced that a special will run from Wilton—Sunday morning at 9 A. M., returning at 4 P. M. More than 100 have signed up for the special. EXTRA RIGHTS OF FOREIGNERS BEFORE POWERS

China Wants System of Extra Territorial Rights in China Ended

SHELVE NAVAL PLANS

Delegates Devote Entire Attention to Far Eastern Situation and China

Washington, Nov. 25.—(By the Associated Press).—The arms conference discussion of Far Eastern questions shifted today to the possibility of abridging the system of "extra territorial rights" under which the powers maintain their own judicial agencies in China for the trial of cases in which their respective nations are involved.

China wants the extra territorial privilege abolished altogether although her delegates have indicated doubt whether the present judicial machinery of the Chinese government would make it possible to withdraw the foreign tribunals immediately. All the other nations concerned have expressed a hope that something can be done toward modifying the present system but have evidenced in the main a feeling that nothing of a very sweeping character in that direction is warranted just now.

The session of the nine delegations sitting as a committee of the whole to discuss the extra territorial problem was the only meeting of the conference or its subdivisions on today's program, the question of land and naval armament having again gone into temporary eclipse while experts prepare their opinion as to details. It was thought by some of the delegates that the committee deliberations also might reach the subject of leases during the day bringing into the discussion the troublesome questions of Shantung and Manchuria.

BRAND LEAVES
New York, Nov. 25.—Aristide Briand, premier of France, was passing on the steamship Paris sailing today for Havre on his trip home after stating the position of his country in regard to the limitation of armaments before the Washington conference.

He was in Washington only a little more than two weeks but while there played a vital part in the conference, his addresses outlining France's reasons for maintaining a sizeable standing army being one of the high spots of the last week's proceedings. He left expressing himself "quite satisfied" with the results of the conference thus far especially as respects France.

SOO CHANGES ARE HELD UP

Proposed Change Can't Be Made Nov. 27 Commission Decides

Hearing of the case, involving proposed new schedule of the Soo line on its north and south branches out of Bismarck was resumed before the state railroad commission today.

Among the Bismarck business men who were witnesses before the commission protesting against the proposed change in schedules and asking new business service were J. P. Sells, A. W. Lucas and Carl Nelson. Others were to be called.

Business men who use the branches a great deal in their business told of difficulties encountered in serving their territory.

Dr. Ramstad and S. D. Dietz were on the stand this morning. S. W. Derrick, superintendent of the Soo, took the stand to explain the railroad company's position. He said the change would save the company $3,000 a month, in connection with operations on its main lines.

The railroad commission took the case under advisement. The proposed change, the commission, announced, could not be put into effect November 27. The commission indicated it would decide the case soon.

ASK ULSTER BE UNTOUCHED IN NEW DIVISION

Proposal is Placed Before Sinn Fein By the British Government

London, Nov. 23.—(By the Associated Press) — The first formal conference between representatives of the government and the Sinn Fein since the meeting of British cabinet members and Ulster representatives was held in Downing street today. Prime Minister Lloyd George and Count Birkenhead, the lord chancellor, met Arthur Griffith and Arthur Collins, the Dail Eireann delegates.

The government put before the Sinn Fein the Ulster rejection to the proposed all-Ireland parliament as well as a suggestion that Ulster be left temporarily as she is while the rest of Ireland receives fiscal autonomy which would make its taxation less than that of Ulster.

The Sinn Fein publicity department, however, declares that the Dail Eireann can consent to none of these plans. The all-Ireland parliament, it declares, must be established at the outset and not be postponed for any term of years. It likewise insists that the parliament must be so constituted that Ulster shall not have more than her proportional representation in the body.

The Sinn Fein object strongly to any proposal which would leave Ulster or any part of it outside the Irish system. Ulster objects to any all-Ireland parliament and refuses to abandon its representation in the imperial parliament. It will only discuss an all-Ireland parliament, it is declared, on condition that the six counties had in such a parliament the same representation as the remaining 26 counties.

Thus tomorrow, it appears, Mr. Lloyd George will have to inform Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, of the Sinn Fein's refusal to concede this point.

FIVE DIE IN MYSTERY HOUSE

Three victims of London's "death house" mystery. Top to bottom, Mrs. Ernest Coates, her husband, and Mrs. Coates' daughter, Mrs. Daisy Townsend.

By N. E. A. Service
London, Nov. 23.—"The house of death!"

Under that name a lonely, abandoned house is known to every resident of the Streatham district.

But they all remember when the "house of death" was the home of a gay family, bright and cheerful, like any other London home. That was before.

A young son of the family secured a military aviator's commission in 1917. Before leaving for the Flanders front, he flew home.

His leave over, the young birdman started away. He rose 500 feet in the air. Then trouble developed. The plane, a mass of flames, dropped directly in front of the house.

In the sight of his frenzied parents, he was burned to death!

The family moved away. Finally another family moved in. It consisted of Ernest Coates, 47, his 63-year-old wife and her two children by a previous marriage—a son, 33, and daughter, 25.

Neighbors saw little of the newcomers. Finally they ceased altogether to see them. The police forced their way into the house.

They found the whole family dead in their beds!

On the living room table were empty champagne bottles, relics of a feast. In them were traces of cyanide of potassium.

Officials say Coates had poisoned himself and the entire family. He feared arrest, the police say, because of misappropriation of funds. And he knew the family might perish if his support were withdrawn.

ELTINGE SHOWING CHAS. RAY THANKSGIVING DAY

"A Midnight Bell" showing at Eltinge on Thanksgiving Day shows Chas Ray as a traveling salesman. Losing his job on the road, he secures a place as clerk in a small town general store. He starts a bargain sale which disposes of more merchandise in a week than the old merchant had sold in a year, and wakes the ghosts and a clash with a band of ruffians add unusual thrills to the characteristic Ray humor. In addition to the Ray picture, an Aesop Fable, "The Cats at Law" and a Toonerville comedy, "Toonerville Follies" are on the Thanksgiving program at the Eltinge.

End Bennett after a long absence from the screen, comes to the Eltinge on Saturday in "Keeping Up with Lizzy," a playing comedy.

Addresses were made by Mr. Nestos and his associates on the state industrial commission Attorney General Johnson and Joseph Kitchen, state commissioner of agriculture and labor.

When the many visitors were introduced the name of Governor Nestos was read first and he was given an ovation lasting several minutes during which the members cheered the new executive.

In the midst of his introduction the telephone rang with a message that the supreme court had reversed itself and that there would be no inaugural. Justice Christmann was present and appealed to and after assurances that it was merely "another rumor," Mr. Nestos addressed the club. He spoke earnestly of the future and paid a high tribute to the Rotary spirit and declared that what North Dakota needed most in this crisis was the spirit of Rotary. He asked the earnest cooperation of Rotary.

Attorney General Johnson and Commissioner Kitchen responded with short addresses in which they voiced their appreciation of the reception accorded them in the city.

The meeting was then turned over to Rev. Dathlewaite who introduced Rev. Dewhurst, rector of the St. George's church who gave an inspiring talk on the reasons why the nation should be thankful. He urged a greater appreciation of the responsibilities that had arisen as a result of the world war. Expressing the conviction that the nation faced the greatest crisis in its history, Rev. Dewhurst paid a special tribute to the Disarmament Conference now in session.

Chairman Finney announced that the farmers south of Bismarck had invited the Rotarians to a coyote hunt Dec. 4 and promised them a feed after the day's sport.

There were a large number of visitors present among whom were, Jerry Bacon, publisher of the Grand Forks Herald, A. W. Stevenson, Associated Press, E. L. Peterson, Dickinson Press, Walter Cushing, Beach Advance, Mr. Smith of Beach, Senator Bond of Minot, Mr. Garnet of Regan.

OVER 4,000 ARE ENROLLED AT FARGO MEETING

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 23.—Announcement that more than 4,000 teachers had enrolled in the association marked the closing session today of the North Dakota State Teachers Association. This is the largest enrollment in the history of the association. It was announced by W. E. Parsons, of Bismarck, secretary.

The new record mark was reached by reason of new members added at this convention, according to Mr. Parsons. The attendance of members in Fargo was approximately 1,500.

A formal reception tendered by the faculty and officials of the Agricultural College will bring the association meeting to a close this afternoon.

The closing session was featured by addresses by John H. Tigert, of Washington; D. C. United States Commissioner of Education and by C. M. Barr, of Milwaukee, Wis., retiring president of the Wisconsin state teachers association.

The officers nominated Tuesday were formally elected by unanimous vote late yesterday. They are: Nelson Sauvin, Devils Lake, president; Mrs. Martha Fulton, Wahpeton, member at large of executive committee, Miss Charlotte Jones, Cavalier, treasurer.

Other officers are named by the executive committee or by district divisions of the association. Time and place for the next meeting of the convention will be fixed by the state executive committee which is holding a meeting.

CONCERNING SILENCE

By Winona Wilcox
(Letters to Lovers)

Marriage is the one human institution from which people expect to get something for nothing.

A prospective bride puts this indirectly: "I'm afraid to marry because the man I am engaged to seems to expect to take the cash and let the credit go."

"He is keen to discuss our wedding journey, but when I finally found courage to ask him how many children he thought we could educate properly, he stammered awhile and said, 'None!'"

"His reason cannot be the cost of raising a family. So what is the matter with him?"

"I am a college girl. I want my babies, and I would like to argue him into the wish to raise at least two children. But he will not talk about it. He is 20 years older than I am."

The man is about two decades behind the times—I thought after reading this letter. And he is unaware that even high school girls today know more about maternity than their mother did when they became brides.

I took the subject up with three clever young women, all engaged. "You girls talk intelligently, scientifically decorously about eugenics and the size of your prospective families. Does the modern young man do the same?" I asked.

They agreed that the frank discussion of parenthood is still tabooed by young men at least by those they are engaged to.

"The boys are far more prudish than we are," one girl scolded. "And what is the good of being scientific if our mates refuse to be?"

"And wouldn't you think that a man would like to know whether a wife is going to assure maternity as a crowning glory? Oh whether she is going to undertake it unwillingly and as a martyrdom?" put in the second girl.

"Maternity is not entirely a wife's problem but the man I am to marry treats it so," said the third girl.

Doubtless the last speaker came close to the real difficulty. Maternity is too often considered solely the wife's affair. And because it is generally considered particularly the woman's problem, girls are at present men's wholly-owned educated than boys, and they are therefore more ready to speak of what concerns their most in marriage.

Communists, suffragists and the schools have worked together to enlighten young women so that "paterfamilias" and "maternity" no longer are words unknown in their pre-nuptial vocabulary. Informed girls today realize that each marriage is a contract with nature for the survival of the race, and to be discussed courageously by the man and woman concerned.

JUST BEING HER HUSBAND'S WIFE; BRITISH VISITOR FALLS IN LOVE WITH AMERICAN ROLLS THAT'S CAREER OF MRS. H. W. MALKIN

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING

Washington, Nov. 23.—"All I set out to be is my husband's wife, so put it down 'Mrs. H. W. Malkin'."

"Do they really say over here, now, like this—Margaret Morris Malkin?" And then, laughing, "How careless! But I have no other career so I shall be known as just my husband's wife!"

Mrs. Malkin, wife of the legal adviser with the British delegation to the disarmament conference, is a vital, ruddy brown sort—ruddy brown hair, with a fresh wind blown look; pink skin, naturally so; heavy brown silk sweater blouse of marvelous weave; brown skirt, brown stockings, small, soft, black slippers with bronze heading.

She Doesn't Smoke
In her apartment at the Hotel Lafayette—already attractive with water colors and sketches brought from England and flaming beech leaves gathered in Washington parks—is the faintest, most delicate suggestion of lavender.

"I use no other perfume," she smiled, then boyishly sniffed the beechy-lavender air.

"And I don't smoke—now, isn't that unusual?" quite seriously.

"I don't know why—just don't fancy it, must be."

"Your big sunny parks are perfectly delicious! I mean to be out in them—oh, quite a great deal! And do you have clubs? Clubs where women can go and sit about? You know, it's quite necessary in London; we're so far apart that we must have places to gather and chat."

Mrs. Malkin was looking out of the window.

"The sun over here! I shall simply sit and bask in it all day! And oh, yes, do you have infant welfare centers? I assisted with them in England—we need them there, but in your big sunny cities what need would you have of such things?"

Mrs. Malkin was showing me some sketches, some of her own work, delicately beautiful things. Then, suddenly—

"And don't you have any nice little weeklies over here? Why, your newspapers that come every day, stupidly me—they are terrifying when you get them apart!" she laughed.

"Never get them together again!"

Loves American Rolls
Mrs. Malkin was showing me some sketches, some of her own work, delicately beautiful things. Then, suddenly—

"Over there I read the papers a little, but mostly books from circulating libraries, books of travel, biography and some novels. I mean to join one here. You have them?"

"At our place in Scotland I have a beloved black and white spaniel, Giles—we go out into the garden, Giles and I, and read for hours! I love gardens."

"Yes, and before you go I must tell you—I think your American rolls are adorable. I eat almost nothing else!"

energy—a man that works hard and plays hard.

Mason City residents know him as "the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. MacNider."

Mr. MacNider was born in Mason City 32 years ago. He began his education in the Mason City public schools, continued his studies at Milton Military Academy at Milton, Mass., and finished at Harvard in 1911. Then for five years he worked as a teller in his father's bank here.

MacNider went to the Mexican border in 1916 as a first lieutenant in the Iowa National Guard. When the war came, he resigned his commission with the National Guard in order to attend the first officers training camp at Fort Snelling in May, 1917. He was given a provisional second lieutenantcy in the regular army and assigned to the Ninth Infantry, which with the Twenty-third, made up the regular brigade of the Second division.

Soon after arriving in France in September, 1917, Mr. MacNider was sent to the army candidates school at Langres as an instructor. The service at Langres was homesome. His old division was on the battle front, winning honor after honor. In May, 1918, MacNider was transferred back to the Indian Head division.

His record from then on can be related along with the campaigns of the Aisne, the Marne, the St. Mihiel and two offensives in the Meuse-Argonne. He was promoted from platoon commander to company commander, major and battalion commander, then lieutenant colonel and regimental commander.

MacNider was wounded at St. Mihiel and was honored with the Distinguished Service Cross and one cluster; Chevalier de Legion d'Honneur; Croix de Guerre with five citations for bravery, five palms, one gold and one silver star; Fourragere and the Italian war cross. He was given three citations in general orders.

After the armistice, Lieutenant Colonel MacNider passed into the berth of division adjutant and was mustered out in September, 1919.

From September, 1920, to September, 1921, MacNider was state commander of the American Legion in Iowa.

While holding the state office, he advocated and saw enacted into law a legislative program including a soldier's bonus bill, a bill giving ex-soldiers preference in public offices, and a bill exempting veterans of the world war from taxes on personal property up to $500. He looked after the hospitalization of Iowa's disabled soldiers and conducted a statewide service and compensation drive.

MacNider stands five feet 11 inches tall, weighs 165 pounds and is fond of all out-of-door athletics.

Mason City residents say his only sweetheart is his mother. One-half hour after he was elected national commander at Kansas City he was telling her all about it over the long distance telephone.

FOCH EAGER TO SEE SOURCE OF ARMIES' FOOD

American Legion Special for Marshal Foch, En Route, Nov. 25.—Ferdinand Foch, Marshal of France, and guest of the American Legion on a 25,000 mile tour through the home of the dough-boy, gob and marine, today told Alton T. Roberts, chairman of the Legion's reception committee, that he is most anxious to see the great wheat fields of the Dakotas and Minnesota that fed the Allied armies during the Great War.

The Marshal was interested in seeing the great industrial center of the East, where munitions were made, but said today that he is most interested in sights that are distinctly American specialties, and are not to be duplicated in Europe.

The American Legion's special train is due in Minneapolis, from Mason City, Ia., over the Chicago & Great Western, at 8:30 today. After spending Saturday in Minneapolis and St. Paul, the Marshal's party will leave over the Northern Pacific at 10 p. m., arriving at Bismarck, N. D., at 11 a. m. Sunday morning. The train will stop here for two hours, and then set out for Billings, Mont.

Recall in June?
There were few Nonpartisans at inaugural ceremonies; none of the defeated officials were there.

"The present administration won't last beyond June," William Lemke asserted, "because they cannot supply all the office seekers with offices nor can they carry out the promises they have made and some of the people accepted these promises at their face value."

Before H. A. Paddock, retiring secretary of the Industrial Commission, left Wednesday night for Minneapolis, he conferred with the new industrial commission, explaining the state of business in his office.

It was announced that the retiring Industrial Commission has adopted a resolution asking labor unions and treasurers who had deposited money in the Bank of North Dakota to allow it to remain.

THE NEW ASSISTANT AT PINE CLEARING SCHOOL

BY BRET HARTE

Copyright by Houghton Mifflin Co. Published by arrangement with THE LITERARY DIGEST NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE

CHAPTER I

The schoolmistress of Pine Clearing was taking a last look around her schoolroom before leaving it for the day.

Mature, thin, precise—not pretty enough to have excited Homeric feuds nor yet so plain as to preclude certain soothing graces—she was the widow of a poor Congregational minister, and had been expressly imported from San Francisco to square the mark the issue between the regenerate and unregenerate life. Low-voiced, gentlewomanly, with the pallor of ill health perhaps unduly accentuated by her mourning, which was still cut modestly enough to show off her spare but good figure, she was supposed to represent the model of pious, scholastic refinement. As she was stepping from the threshold, she was suddenly confronted by a brisk business-looking man who was about to enter. "Just in time to catch you, Mrs. Martin," he said hurriedly; then, quickly correcting his manner in familiarity, he added, "I mean I took the liberty of running in here on my way to the stage office. That matter you spoke of is all arranged. I talked it over with the other trustees, wrote to Sam Barstow, and he's agreeable and has sent somebody up and," he rapidly consulted his watch, "he ought to be here now, and I'm on my way to meet him with the other trustees."

Mrs. Martin, who at once recognized her visitor as the Chairman of the school board, greeted the abrupt introduction with the slight, tremulousness, faint increase of color, and hurried breathing of a nervous woman. "Gut," she said, "it was only a suggestion of mine, Mr. Sperry. I really have no right to ask—I had no idea—"

"It's all right, ma'am—never your mind. We put the case square to Barstow. We allowed that the school was getting too large for you to tackle—I mean, you know, to superintend single-handed, and that these Pike county boys are running in on us like a little too hot and saucy for a lady like you to lasso and throw down—I mean, to sorter control—don't you see? But, bless you, Sam Barstow saw it all in a minute! He just jumped at it. Must go now—they'll be waiting. Only I thought I'd drop in a passing, to keep you posted," and, taking off his hat, he began to back from the porch.

Arrived at the stage office, he found the two other trustees waiting, and the still more tardy stagecoach. One, a large, smooth-faced, portly man, was the Presbyterian minister, the other, of thinner and more serious aspect, was a large mill-owner.

"I presume," said the Rev. Mr. Peaseley slowly, "that as our good brother Barstow, in the urgency of the occasion, has, to some extent, antedated our functions in engaging this assistant, he is—a—satisfied with his capacity?"

"Sam knows what he's about," said the mill-owner cheerfully, "and as he's regularly buckled down to the work here, and will go his bottom dollar on it, you can safely leave things to him."

"He certainly has exhibited great zeal," said the reverend gentleman patronizingly.

"Zeal," echoed Sperry enthusiastically, "zeal. Why he runs Pine Clearing as he runs his bank and his express company in Sacramento, and he's as well posted as if he were here all the time. Why, look here, I've heard the mill-owner brag, and as the minister's back was momentarily turned, pulled out the letter he had avoided reading to Mrs. Martin, and pointed to a paragraph. "I'll be d—d," said the writer, "but I'll have peace and quietness at Pine Clearing, if I have to wipe out or make over the whole Pike county gang. Draw on me for a piano, if you think Mrs. Martin can work it. But don't say anything to Peaseley first, or he'll want it changed for a harmonium and that lets us in for a long sing—"

"What does that mean?" asked the mill-owner.

"I reckon he means he don't want Pine Clearing to get too high-toned any more than he wants it too low."

Here speculation was stopped by the rapid oncoming of the stagecoach in all the impotent fury of a belated arrival. "Had to go around by Montezuma to let off Jack Hill," curiously explained the driver, as he swung himself from the box, and entered the hotel bar-room in company with the new expressman, who had evidently taken Hill's place on the box-seat. Automatically indifferent to further inquiry, he called out cheerfully, "Come along, boys, and hear this year's last new yarn about Sam Barstow—it's the biggest thing out." And in another moment the waiting crowd, with glasses in their hands, were eagerly listening to the repetition of the "yarn" from the new expressman, to the apparent exclusion of other matters, mundane and practical.

When the story-teller had concluded amidst a general call for more drinks, Sperry approached the driver. The latter recognizing him, turned to his companion curiously, a. d. said, "Here's one of 'em," and he was going away when Sperry stopped him.

"We were expecting a young man," "Yes," said the driver impatiently, "and there he is, I reckon." "We don't mean the new expressman," said the minister, smiling blandly, "but a young man who—" "That ain't no new expressman," returned the driver in scornful depreciation of the interlocutor's ignorance. "He only took Hill's place from Montezuma. He's the new kid reviver and polisher for that University you're running here, I say—you fellows oughter set him to tell you that story of Sam Barstow and the Chinaman it'd lumber you fellows up to hear it."

"I fear there's some extraordinary mistake here," said Mr. Peaseley, with a chilling criticism smile.

"Not a bit of it. He's got a letter from Sam for one of 'em. Yere, Charley—what's your name? Come yere. Yere's all three bosses waiting for ye."

And the supposed expressman and late narrator of amusing stories came forward and presented his credentials as the assistant teacher of Pine Clearing.

CHAPTER II

Even the practical Mr. Sperry was taken aback. The young man before him was squarely built, with broad shoulders, and a certain air of muscular activity. But his face, although good humored, was remarkable for offering not the slightest indication of studious preoccupation or mental training. A large mouth, light blue eyes, a square jaw, the other features being indistinctive—were immobile as a mask—except that, unlike a mask, they seemed to actually reflect the content of the mood within. Instead of concealing it, but as he saluted the trustees they each had the same feeling that even this expression was imported and not instinctive.

Yet there was the letter in Mr. Peaseley's hands from Barstow, introducing Mr. Charles Twing as the first assistant teacher in the Pine Clearing Free Academy!

The three men looked hopefully at each other.

"Are you personally known to Mr. Barstow?" asked Sperry, with a slight business asperity.

"That is—you are quite well acquainted with him?"

"If you'd heard me gag his style a minute ago, so that everybody here knew who it was, you'd say so."

Mr. Peaseley's eyes sought the ceiling. "I presume, Mr. Twing, you feel that you are fully competent to undertake this work?"

"Who does?"

"Sam Barstow, or he wouldn't have selected me. I presume," with the slightest possible and almost instinctive imitation of the reverend gentleman's manner, "his head is considered level."

Mr. Peaseley withdrew his eyes from the ceiling. "I have," he said to his companions, with a pained smile, "an important choir meeting to attend this afternoon. I fear I must be excused." As he moved towards the door, the others formally following him, until out of the stranger's hearing, he added, "I was not hands of this, but the real arbiters. In this matter will be—thank Heaven!—the mistress herself. Her decision will be speedy and final. For even Mr. Barstow will not dare to force so outrageous a character upon a delicate, refined woman."

"That's so," said Sperry eagerly; "she'll settle it."

"And, of course," added the mill-owner, "that will leave us out of any difficulty with Sam."

The two men returned to the baggage room, it would be necessary, they said, to introduce him to his principal, Mrs. Martin, at once. They might still find her at the schoolhouse, distant but a few steps. Here they did find Mrs. Martin, who had, naturally, lingered after the interview with Sperry.

She came forward to meet them, with the nervous shyness and slightly fastidious hesitation that was her nature. They saw, or fancied they saw, the same surprise and disappointment which had themselves experienced over her sensitive face, as she looked at him; they felt that their vulgar charge appeared still more outrageous by contrast with this delicate woman and her pretty, refined surroundings; but they saw that he enjoyed it, and was even—if such a word could be applied to so self-conscious a man—more at ease in her presence!

"I reckon you and me will pull together very well, ma'am," he said confidently.

"It's mighty pretty place you've got here—and I like it, and if we can't run it I don't know what you want. I just let me know what you want, ma'am, and you can count on me every time."

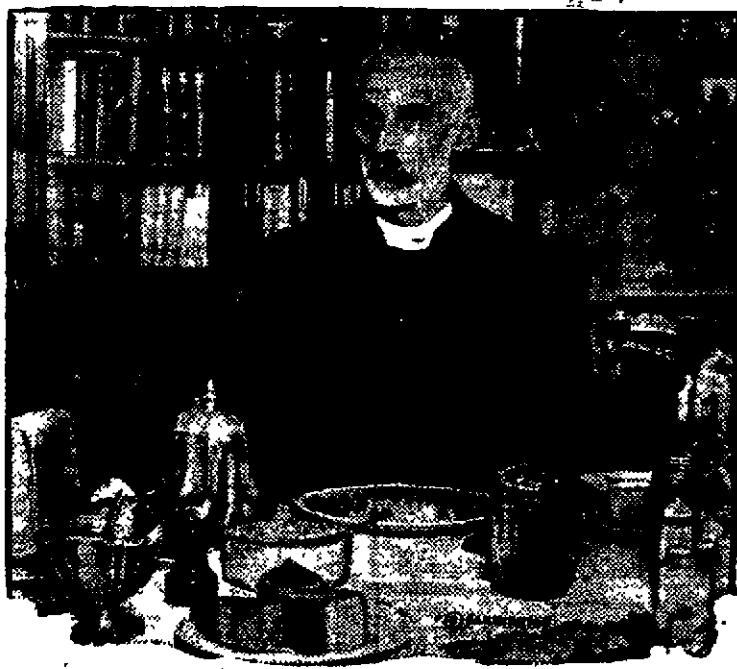

To their profound consternation Mrs. Martin smiled faintly.

"It reads with you only, Mrs. Martin," said Sperry quickly and significantly.

"If I say you know, you're the only one to be considered or consulted here."

"Only just say what you want me to do," continued Twing, apparently ignoring the trustees.

PASTOR BESIEGED IN HOME

The Rev. G. H. Borrell in his barricaded home eating a meal passed to him through the window.

By NEA Service

London, Nov. 25.—Behind barbed wire entanglements and heavily barricaded doors, the Rev. G. H. Borrell, a clergyman, for nine months has been besieged in his home in the heart of London.

Nine stalwart detectives, working in eight-hour shifts of three, day and night, are the besieging force.

Last Christmas the Rev. Borrell refused to pay a tax levy imposed by the Socialist borough council of Islington. Because, he said, he was an opponent of socialism and didn't have enough to meet the levy, anyway.

Unable to seize his property, the council got an order for his arrest. Then the siege began. Since detectives cannot force entry into a house under British law, their only chance is to seize the clergyman when he comes out.

Thus far, it's cost the council $10,000 to maintain the siege. And the "fighting parsons" tax levy only amounted to $200!

The clergyman gets his food and supplies by drawing them up on a rope passed through the upper window.

He spends his spare time preaching to the detectives through a top story window.

style of job; give me a hint or two how to work it, or what you'd think would be the proper gag to fetch 'em, and I'm there, ma'am. It may be new at first, but I'll get at the business of it quick enough."

Mrs. Martin smiled—this time quite perceptibly—with the least little color in her cheeks and eyes. "Then you've had no experience in teaching?" she said.

"Well—no."

"You are not a graduate of any college?"

"Not much."

The two trustees looked at each other. Even Mr. Peaseley had not conceived such a damning revelation.

"Well," said Mrs. Martin slowly, "perhaps Mr. Twing had better come early tomorrow morning and begin."

"Gladly," answered Mr. Sperry in breathless astonishment.

"Certainly," said Mrs. Martin in timid explanation. "If he is new to the work the sooner the better."

Mr. Sperry could only gaze blankly at his brother official. Had they heard aright? He drew her quickly aside.

"One moment, Mrs. Martin! You said to me an hour ago that you didn't intend to have asked Mr. Barstow to send you an assistant. I hope that, merely because he has done so, you don't feel obliged to accept this man against your better judgment."

"On no," said Mrs. Martin quietly.

"Mrs. Martin," he said in a lower voice, "I ought to tell you that the Reverend Mr. Peaseley strongly doubts the competency of that young man."

"Didn't Mr. Barstow make a selection at your request?" asked Mrs. Martin, with a faint little nervous cough.

"Yes—but—"

"Then his competency only concerns me—and I don't see what Mr. Peaseley has to say about it."

On no, CHATTER III.

Mrs. Martin was early at the schoolhouse the next morning, yet so early but that she discovered that the new assistant had been there before her. This was shown in some rearrangement of the school seats and benches. It was nearly the school hour when he appeared, to her surprise, marshaling a file of some of the smaller children whom he had evidently picked up en route, and who were, to her greater surprise, apparently on the best of terms with him.

"Thought I'd better take 'em in, to introduce myself to 'em and get 'em to know me before school begins. Excuse me," he went on hastily, "but I've a lot more coming up, and I'd better make myself square with them out-side."

But Mrs. Martin had apparently developed a certain degree of stiffness since their evening's interview.

"It seems to me quite as important, Mr. Twing," she said dryly, "that you should first learn some of your own duties, which I came here early to teach you."

"Not at all," he said cheerfully. "Today I take my seat as I've arranged it, you see, over there with them, and watch 'em go through the motions. One rehearsal's rough for me."

And before she could reply he was out of the schoolhouse again, hailing the newcomers. This was done with apparently such delight to the children, and with some evidently imported expressions into his smooth masklike face, that Mrs. Martin had to content herself with watching him with equal curiosity. She was turning away with a sudden sense of forgotten dignity, when a shout of joyous childish laughter attracted her attention to the window.

The new assistant, with half a dozen small children on his square shoulders, walking with bent back and every simulation of advanced senility, was evidently personating, with the assistance of astonishingly distorted features, the ogre of a Christmas pantomime. And when school began, although he marshaled them triumphantly to the very door—with what contortion of face or simulation of character she was unable to guess after he had entered the schoolroom and taken his seat every vestige of his previous facial aberration was gone, and only his usual stolidity remained.

Yet she was nervously conscious, meanwhile of a more ill-mannered occurrence. This was the non-arrival of several of her oldest pupils, notably, the refractory and incorrigible Pike county contingent to whom Sperry had alluded. For the past few days he had hovered in the verge of acquiescent insubordination. It was, there fore, with some inward trepidations, that he entirely relapsed by Twing's presence into the three Mackin

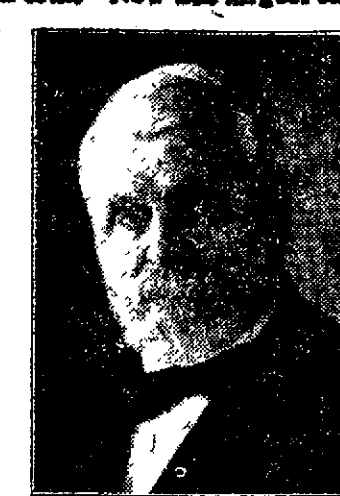

Doctor at 82 Finds Mothers Prefer His Formula to New-Fangled Salts And Coal Tar Remedies for Babies

Judgment of 1892 vindicated by world's approval of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a simple vegetable compound for constipation—So safe thousands give it to babies—Now has largest sale in the world.

WHEN a man is in the 83rd year of his age, as I am, there are certain things he has learned that only time can teach him. The basis of treating sickness has not changed since I left Medical College in 1870, nor since I placed on the market the laxative prescription I had used in my practice known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headache, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of my Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of Egyptian Senna and other mild laxative herbs with pepsin.

Recently new medicines have been brought out for constipation that contain calomel, which is mercury, salts of various kinds, minerals, and coal tar. These are all drastic purges, many of them dangerous, and the medical profession is warning the public against them. Certain coal tar products will depress the heart; certain salts give rise to intestinal poisoning, impaction and rupture of the intestines. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can not see the using of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take the trouble with pills and powders and strong drugs, even if disguised in candy? My remedy, too, costs less than most others, only about a cent a dose. A bottle such as you can find in any drug store, will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the babe in arms because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In the proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal.

The formula of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is on the cover of every bottle, and the ingredients have the endorsement of the U. S. Pharmacopoeia.

$10,000 Worth of Syrup Pepsin Free

In remembrance of my 83rd birthday I have set aside the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars to be given away in half-ounce bottles of my Syrup Pepsin. Only one Free Trial bottle to a family. a slight nervous asperity, "that this outrageous conduct of Tom Hardee was evidently deliberated and prepared by others, and cannot end in this way."

He looked at her with a face so exasperatingly expressionless that she could have slapped it as it had belonged to one of the older scholars, and said: "But it has ended. It's dead frost."

"I don't know what you mean; and I must remind you also that in this school we neither teach nor learn slang."

"Excuse me—won't you? But, look here, Mrs. Martin, I found out early this morning, when I was squaring myself with the other children, that there was this row hangin' on—in fact, that there was a sort of idea that Pike county wasn't having a fair show—excuse me—in the running of the school, and that Peaseley and Barstow were a little too much on in every scene. In fact, you see, it was just what Tom said."

"This is insufferable," said Mrs. Martin, her eyes growing darker as her cheeks grew red. "They shall go home to their parents, and tell them from me!"

"That they're all mistaken—excuse me—but that's just what they're going to do. I tell you, Mrs. Martin, their little game's busted—I beg pardon—but it's all over. You'll have no more trouble with them."

"And you think that just because you found Tom had something in his hat, and exposed him?" said Mrs. Martin scornfully.

"I won't ask you if you call this fair to the boy, Mr. Twing?" said Mrs. Martin hotly, "but is this your idea of discipline?"

"I call it fair, because Tom knew it was some kind of a trick, and wasn't deceived. I call it discipline if it made him do what was right afterwards, and makes him afraid or unwilling to do anything to offend me or you again. And," he added, with a sardonic earnestness, "if you'll consider me here to me, and only consider me here to take this sort of work—which ain't a lady's-off your hands, we'll just strike our own line between the Peaseleys and Pike county—and run this school in spite of both."

A little mollified, a good deal puzzled and perhaps more influenced by the man's manner than she had imagined, Mrs. Martin said nothing, but let the day pass without dismissing the offenders.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Martin was somewhat formally early at the schoolhouse the next morning. "Perhaps," she said, with an odd mixture of dignity and timidity, "we'd better, before school commences, go over the lessons for the day."

"I have," he said quickly. "I told you one rehearsal was enough for me."

"You mean you have looked over them."

"Got 'em by heart. Later perfect. Want to hear me? Listen."

She did. He had actually committed to memory, and without a lapse, the entire text of rules, questions, answers, and examples of the lessons for the day.

CHAPTER IV

Before a month had passed Mr. Twing's success was secure and established. Grammar was still taught at Pine Clearing School in spite of the Hardees and Mackinnons, but Twing had managed to import into the coarsest exercises of recitation a wonderful degree of enthusiasm and excellence. Dialectical Pike county, that had refused to recognize the governing powers of the nominative case, nevertheless came out strong on classical elocution, and Tom Hardee, who had delivered his ungrammatical protest on behalf of Pike county, was no less strong, if more elegant in his imprecation of Warren Hastings as Edmund Burke. As to Mrs. Martin, she seemed to accept the work of Mr. Twing after his own definition of it—as of a masculine quality ill suited to a lady's tastes and inclinations; but it was noticeable that while she had at first repelled any criticism of him whatever, she had lately been given to explaining his position to her friends, and had spoken of him with somewhat labored and ostentatious patronage. Yet when they were alone together she frankly found him very amusing, and his presumption and vulgarity so clearly unintentional that it no longer offended her. They were good friends without having any confidences beyond the duties of the school. What his actual antecedents were she had never cared to know, nor he apparently to reveal; that he had been engaged in some other occupations of superior or inferior quality would not have been remarkable in a community where the principal lawyer had been a soldier and the miller a doctor.

Tom had admitted that he pleased her, but carried with it no ulterior thought or responsibility might have been equally clear to others. Perhaps it was so to him.

Hewlett, this easy mutual intercourse was one day interrupted by what seemed a trifling incident. The piano, which Mr. Barstow had promised, duly made its appearance in the schoolhouse, to the delight of the scholars and the gentle satisfaction of Mrs. Martin, who, in addition to the rudimentary musical instruction of the younger girls, occasionally played upon it herself in a prim, refined and conscientious fashion. To this, when she was alone after school hours, she sometimes added a faint, colorless voice of limited range and gottelwomansly expression. It was on one of these occasions that Twing, becoming an accidental auditor of this chaste, sad piping, was not only permitted to remain to hear the end of a love-song of strictly guarded passion in the sub-junctive mood, but at the close was invited to try his hand—a quick, if not cultivated one—at the instrument. He did so. Like her, he added his voice. Like hers, it was a love-song. But there the similitude ended. Negro in dialect, illiterate in construction, idiotic in passion, and presumably addressed to the "Rose of Alabama," in the very extravagance of its childish infa-tuation it might have been a mockery of the schoolmistress' song but for one tremendous fact: In un-restrained feeling, pathetic yearning, it was unmistakably and appallingly personal and sincere. It was true the lips spoken of were "lily," the eyes alluded to were like "lightenin' bugs," but from the voice and gestures of the singer Mrs. Martin confusedly felt that they were intended for her. Alternately flushing and paling, with a hysterical smile hovering round her small reserved mouth, the unfortunate gentlewoman was fain to turn to the window to keep her countenance; until the song was concluded.

Nevertheless, when Twing, a week or two later, suggested that he might sing the same song as a solo at a certain performance to be given by the school children in aid of a local charity, she dryly intimated that it was hardly of a character to suit the entertainment. "But," she added, murently, "you recite so well; why not give a recitation?"

Miss Yocum To Be In Charge Of Piano Work at Conservatory

The Bismarck Conservatory of Music is fortunate in having secured for the head of the piano department Miss Bertha Joachim (anglicized Yocum), who is widely known as a certified exponent of the Leschetizky School of Vienna.

Miss Yocum received her early training in the oldest conservatory of Philadelphia, passing entirely through the curriculum for piano and passing the harmony examination without an error. Her analytical mind led her to a comparative study of modern piano methods and she is thoroughly acquainted with the principles of every school, but she remains a loyal disciple of the great master, Leschetizky.

Her work in the Leschetizky school was exceptional for she was for over six years a pupil of Leschetizky and his first assistant, the late Mme Medaie de Weitzelska. She studied also with Praelter, Rosporus and has coached with Edwin Hughes and Frank La Forge. She has played acceptably for Messrs. Oslip Gabri-owetsch, Orvide Musin and H. von Ende.

Prior to going abroad Miss Yocum had a successful school of music in Philadelphia and the advanced pupils of this school were acknowledged in her city as artist pupils, surpassed by none. One of her early pupils became a credited pupil in the New England Conservatory with most favorable comments.

For the past nine years, Miss Yocum has held important positions as director in Southern Colleges, St. Mary's, Dallas, Bellhaven, Jackson and Ward Belmont at Nashville, Tenn., and as special director in the summer normal courses in San Antonio for the Catholic Sisters of Texas.

Miss Yocum holds papers from the University of the State of New York and of the American College of Musicians.

The courses pursued in her teaching are accepted by leading colleges and conservatories.

With the interest in music shown in the city of Bismarck, the musical public will appreciate this opportunity for study under a teacher of such genuine training and musicianship.

Following are press notices taken from three papers.

Miss Yocum is an unusually talented pupil of Leschetizky. Her work last Thursday proved her to be a most interesting player. She is a conscientious artist and her playing of the program numbers gave evidence of talent of high order. Her work was always accurate and she impressed the audience with her repose and reserve power.—Musical America on New York Recital.

It is no ordinary privilege for students to have in addition to a painstaking and efficient instructor one who as a performer is both an ideal and an inspiration.—Jackson Daily News.

Miss Yocum's interpretation of the Chopin Ballade was given with great feeling and purity of touch, and the temperaments of the two artists—composer and player—were in exquisite harmony.—Dallas Beau Monde.

Christmas Seal Sale Will Be a Success

All records will be broken in the Christmas Seal Sale put on by the North Dakota Tuberculosis Association, commencing November 24th, in the opinion of those who have studied the situation, and it is anticipated that every person in the state will buy the Christmas Seals and Health Bonds.

People have come to realize that in buying Christmas Seals they are not giving anything. They are merely buying health insurance for themselves and families, and the Christmas Seal Sale should not be considered in the nature of a drive to raise money for unfortunate across the seas, for it is nothing of the kind.

There isn't a man, woman or child in North Dakota who isn't in danger of contracting tuberculosis so long as there are people in the state who have the disease, and it is to cure those who already have it and prevent others from having it that this money is being raised.

Every penny a person pays out for Christmas Seals is just that much of a guarantee against himself or some one being caught in the clutches of the Great White Plague.

North Dakota was away down the list last year in the sale of Christmas Seals. It is felt that the state will make a better showing this year.

Carnival Dance tonight at Baker's Hall. 10c a dance. Everybody welcome.

BROKER ADMITS PASSING BOGUS CERTIFICATES

St. Louis, Nov. 25.—G. Halliday, a broker whose firm recently went into bankruptcy with liabilities more than $140,000 confessed early today, according to the police that he had counterfeited $1,550,000 in interim certificates upon the French government and that he had passed $63,000 worth of them on St. Louis banks in an effort to liquidate his losses.

Harry Turner, editor of a bi-monthly magazine, and Paul Murphy, a magazine solicitor, are held in connection with the case. All were arrested last night. In his confession, police say, Halliday claims, he had placed $43,000 in certificates with one bank and an additional $20,000 in another bank.

Halliday said he had borrowed approximately $32,000 cash when he gave out $52,000 worth of the certificates.

The Halliday mentioned is no relation to G. V. Halliday until recently of Bismarck.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

INAUGURAL ADDRESS
Gov. R. A. Nestos' inaugural address is a frank promise to reduce the cost of state government in North Dakota insofar as it is within his power. Responsibility has been so widely distributed over the state administration that no one official without the cooperation of the entire executive branch of the state government can effect any great economies.

If there are to be excessive bond issues for speculative enterprises in the name of industrial programs, North Dakota is in for more taxes. Lopping off a stenographer here and eliminating a doorkeeper or janitor there will not go to the root of the extravagance of state government.

The cost of so called expert advice, special examinations and technical surveys saps the revenues more than the petty crowd of pot hunters that cling like so many barnacles to the ship of state.

North Dakota maintains a department known as State Examiner. It costs the state no small amount to support this office which if efficient would be able to detect leaks in public expenditures without calling in outside accountants at a fabulous expenditure.

If the cost of various examinations by private accounting firms were investigated over a period of ten years in North Dakota, the sum total would stagger the taxpayers. Much of the money was spent needlessly for none of the recommendations seem to have been followed and the leaks grow in volume regardless of the expert advice.

Governor Nestos can establish a State Examiner's office that will function as it should and save the state the additional cost of high priced experts. If extra assistance is necessary there are men in the state possessed of common business sense who can go over the books and at a reasonable charge give the simple remedy to effect economy in the disbursement of public funds.

North Dakota has been "expedited" to death during the last five years. Specialists in all sorts of governmental theories have fattened at the public crib. Governor Nestos can do much by getting the regular force to work upon some of the problems that the experts have fallen down upon. There are plenty of good men in the rank and file of the clerical force who if given a chance will dig up more that is wrong in the handling of the state's business than all the $50 a day experts combined.

Governor Nestos put his finger on the real reason of the high cost of government when he alluded to state ownership. Elected on a program that promised going through with the Grand Forks mill and elevator, he frankly stated that he would finish that project. Although The Tribune has never felt that the mandate was as binding as Mr. Nestos feels it is, but as that is his honest conviction, he is more the man to come out openly and state his determination to finish the white elephant and seek some way out that will not be too costly to the taxpayers of the state.

In pledging his administration to the completion of the mill, he frankly states that he is opposed to state ownership and believes that the real solution of the marketing problems of the farmer is in cooperative effort of the farmers themselves unaided by unfair state subsidies that must be paid by all the taxpayers whether they benefit directly or not. This has always been The Tribune's contention.

Friend or foe who heard the address must have been impressed with its frankness. The enthusiasm of the inaugural is over, but the promises made are still fresh in the minds of the people. Those pledges must be performed more rigidly than any ever made in the history of North Dakota. A recall election imposes obligations unlike those that any other kind of an election imposes. And what is more, the people are expecting results and will be content with nothing less than honest service and an end of socialistic vagaries.

CONTEST DECISION
No serious minded person expected any other decision in the contest case engineered by a group of taxpayers. There was little fear of the result, but the fact that such a futile case was ever started remains more or less a mystery. It can be dismissed as the final attempt of the nonpartisan league to cling to the flashpots a little longer, but that explanation is discounted by the Courier-News which opposed the filing of the contest petition.

On the other hand the case may have been started in rebellion against the leadership of Senator Le'derbach to appease the bitter ends in the league who never say die until the last man is out.

Then there are attorneys who confronted with a long hard winter may have seen in this an opportunity for more pelf if not power. Litigation has been prolific the last five years and promise of the courts being used as one of the battlefields of political contention in North Dakota is apparent. That doubtless is the unfortunate aftermath of a recall election.

But whatever the motives, the contest case was uncalled for and unsupported by public opinion and evidently had little to commend it from a legal aspect as the court gave the issues short shrift.

The supreme court disposed of the case in a manner strictly in keeping with fair play and the decision is endorsed by an electorate which is divided sharply upon the general issues of state government.

HOME BREW
A breakdown in the nation's health, as an aftermath of the failure of prohibition enforcement, is predicted by Dr. J. M. Doran, chief chemist of prohibition headquarters in Washington.

"The next few years," says Doran, "will be a highly profitable era for stomach specialists."

That is true. A lot of patients will result from the fake whisky made from grain alcohol and colored with prune juice, burnt sugar, etc. Crowding on their heels will be an army of home brewers. Takes a chemist to make pure liquor.

LOAD
Picture everybody in the United States, marching in line, each with a bag containing $4000 in gold. That would just above cover the world's national debts—which now total $400,000,000,000, or 10 times as much as in 1913, says O. P. Austin, statistician of the National City Bank, New York.

Part of that debt will be paid off. But not all. Some one is going to lose. Posterity will curse our generation.

IMMUNE
"The best way to fight disease is to concentrate on restoring underweight children to the normal state of nutrition. A speaker says that, at the annual meeting of the Boston Tuberculosis Association.

Right! Germs rarely can multiply into a danger in a healthy body. And the health of maturity is determined in youth. In middle age, the body tissues are turning into cast-iron and little can be done for them.

EDITORIAL REVIEW
Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

THE NONPARTISAN LEAGUE SQUABBLE
Now that the three most important state officials of the Nonpartisan League in North Dakota have been recalled by vote of the people, there is developing within the league a family row with words so loud that all the anti-league neighbors can hear them. Considerable soiled linen has been hung out on the line in the public view, and it looks as if only a small part of it has thus far been displayed.

It is not news to say that there was bad feeling in the family long before the recent election. Rumors that A. C. Townley and William Lemke had parted company and had drawn swords of combat were frequent and insistent moths ago. It is a matter of record that there was trouble and bitterness in the press and publicity department—trouble that resulted in threats of libel suits and worse.

The latest report is that the Lemke following is behind the movement to contest the recall election, although previous stories of that kind were denied from what appeared to be a responsible and authoritative source. It is added that the movement is only one more phase of the Lemke-Townley schism. The Courier-News, official organ of the league, has expressed opposition to the contest, and in the league headquarters in Fargo there is apparently an attitude of indifference toward, if not objection to, the movement.

The Courier-News calls for a report from the league state officials of the workings of the State Home Builders' association, one of the league's pets. Incidentally, the Courier-News goes independent assailants of the conduct of the association one better in declaring that the house built for Lemke cost $20,000, whereas the law provides that the state shall not undertake to finance the building of houses costing more than $5,000. The Independents were content to leave the figures at $16,000. There is also "a kettle of fish" in connection with the state's part in financing a house built for John N. Hagan, recalled commissioner of agriculture.

Nearly every day something is coming out of North Dakota to point the difference between theory and practice, and to show what a stiff obstacle is the human equation against the success of the kind of program the Nonpartisan League set up for our sister state. Presumably a detailed account of the affairs of the Home Builders' association and of other phases of Nonpartisan League rule will soon be available from Bismarck. It may be as interesting in its way as "Main Street" was in its way.—Minneapolis Tribune.

WINDS
(Florence Borer, Bismarck, N. D.)
Wind of the Northland, buoyant and free,
Bringing a breath of that frozen clime,
Where Aurora-Borealis lights the skies,
With a radiance that is grand, sublime;
What do you say as you journey forth?
Lord of the Air with the beard of snow,
Turning the pond to a glare of ice,
Causing destruction wherever you go.
Wind of the Southland, with fragrant breath,
Of spice and myrrh from the Orient,
Pictures of caravans fall and rise,
Then a shadowy palm, and a flapping tent
Where the travelers rest ere they journey on,
Tired from the heat of their desert ride,
Glad for the respite of the night,
And the gleaming stars in the heavens wide.
Wind of the Eastland, courageous and strong,
Like to the warrior's speeding bow
You rush; at the sound of your strident voice,
The tall pine shakes, and the oak bends low;
While you mean and sigh on a stormy night,
Like some tortured soul that has been condemned,
To the depth of darkness, forever banned
From the frown of ice, or the smile of friend.

Wind of the Southland, calm and serene,
Like to the night when the day is done,
Silently, silently onward you steal,
Bringing the joy of a task well done;
Softly descending from out the sky,
Fanning the brow that is damp with sweat,
Cooling the lips that are parched and dry,
Striving to make us forgive and forget.

"HOME PROJECTS ADAPTED TO NORTH DAKOTA FARMING," WAS MATT. SAAR'S SUBJECT
Principal and Director of Agriculture at Velva Talks to Teachers
MAIN FACTORS ANALYZED

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 25.—The boy owner of a successful agricultural school problem project is best promoter of a new and advanced system of agriculture, Matt Saar, principal and director of agriculture at Velva, told the Agriculture Section, of the North Dakota State Teachers' Association at its final meeting here Wednesday. Mr. Saar's subject was "Home Projects Adapted to North Dakota Farming."

"In order to determine what projects are suitable to the agriculture of North Dakota or any other state, it is necessary to analyze the factors entering into the project problem. These main factors are:
The school.
The pupil.
The pupil's parents.
The agricultural instructor or project supervisor.
The community.

"The school is an institution that is supported by the people, as we all know, and because the tax payers usually insist upon seeing tangible results from the expenditure of their money, the home project if properly selected and administered, becomes one of the most telling arguments why the school should have more support. Therefore the kind of a project to be promoted should be such that its results can be seen by the patrons of the school.

"The pupil is in our hands to receive training. It is up to us to give him through practical experience scientific knowledge regarding the science and business of agriculture. Furthermore, we must make a desirable citizen out of him and in order to do this, we must teach him lessons of industry, thrift, responsibility, property ownership, etc. We must not lose sight of the fact that he might not become a farmer when he grows up and so the project should be such that it will prepare him in some way for other occupations as well as that of farming.

"Very often students have chances to work during the summer vacations and in order to preclude the possibility of their leaving the project, the project should be so large that it will provide profitable employment for the whole season. There is no reason why the project should not be large enough to provide the student wages for his work. If the project is not a paying proposition financially there is usually no excuse for any agricultural man to expect his students to spend his time upon it. It is very hard to command sufficiently the interest of the students for best final results if the project is so small that the student is not vitally concerned with the possible profit or loss. In order to secure the best work out of the student, therefore, he should take up a project that will tie him down pretty well for the summer and give him real experience and work.

"The interest and cooperation of the students' parents must be enlisted if the student is to have the support that he needs. The project, therefore, should be big enough to catch the interest of the parents. If this is done, the parents will become tied up in the work and so they too receive the benefits of a well administered job. This gives the agricultural man a chance to show the patrons of the school that the school is promoting a real business proposition and not a play affair that may amount to little or nothing in the end.

List of Projects.
"It is quite hard to recommend any set list of projects that are suitable to North Dakota farming. Conditions vary so much in different localities and different parts of the state that it would not be wise to say definitely that this project or that is a good one

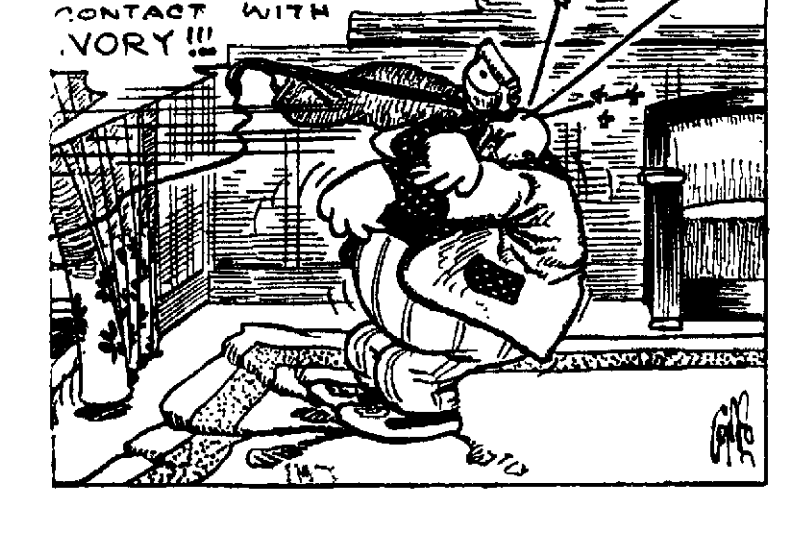

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS
By Olive Barton Roberts
The Twins liked Mr. Pim Pim at once. He was the fat, funny little leader of the Brownies, you know, and the children had come to help him. What does fatness, or funniness, or lumpiness count for if one's eyes are kind and merry. And Pim Pim's eyes were the nicest ever.

"I must be going now," said the Magical Mushroom when the how-do-you-does were over. "You children are all right with your Magical Shoes 'n' all, and I'm sure that the three of you will get along famously. Mr. Pim Pim will show you where to dig the sparkling colors for the Christmas toys and if I am not mistaken, he has two enchanted stoves to give you. But there! Pim Pim will tell you all about that himself. I'm only being a gossip. Bye-bye, kiddies! Be good!"

Then kissing the n both affectionately and shaking hands with the Brownies King, off went the good old fairy. Or rather out he went, like a candle flame when you blow it. One instant he was there and the next he wasn't; that was all! That's what comes of being magical.

When he had gone, Mr. Pim Pim turned to Nancy and Nick. "Well, well, well!" he said. "You couldn't have come at a better time, for Kip has been cutting up high jinks. You know he used to be leader of the Brownies and is now trying to do what he can to hinder me in my work. What do you think he's done? Stolen the key to my cupboard where I had the shovels hidden! The worst of it is that he's skipped off through the secret passage to the village of the gnomes, and if he gives the gnomes the key, dear knows when we'll ever get it. The gnomes have as many secret places to hide things as a porcupine has quills."

(To Be Continued)

for North Dakota. Dr. A. V. Storm, in his new book on how to teach agriculture, gives a long list of projects including potato growing, grain growing, poultry, livestock, dairying, soils and farm management and many others. Perhaps it would be best to say that any agricultural man can determine for himself what projects should be chosen after he has made a careful analysis of the situation in his community. If he thinks that some new crop should be introduced, that would in some measure at least determine the kind of project that would be timely. If he wishes to show his community that there is profit in poultry that would affect his choice. The nature of the pupils and the parents would have much to do with the choice of a project.

"Our community has had six crop failures and because grain has been the chief crop around Velva we decided to promote the growing of cultivated crops such as corn and potatoes. Realizing that we should not divide our attention between too many lines of work, we decided to stress the growing of potatoes in order that good showing might be made in that line if in nothing else. We talked six of our best boys into planting potatoes. Two boys put in ten acres apiece, another five and the rest about three acres apiece. Superintendent Bradley planted 12 acres and I put in about three. We made some big threats of buying new cars with the money from our potatoes and aroused a great deal of attention and laughter by our remarks. No doubt our potato projects were well advertised by those who have tried hard to come out even on their large farms and such individuals were many. When the hot winds came, grain, of course, withered away and many farmers told me confidentially that it would not take many days before spuds would be a total loss. As it happened, rains came along later in the summer and so our potatoes started again and brought in better returns than any of the other crops planted in that neighborhood. One of our boys harvested 350 bushels alone and according to present prices made a clear profit of over $600.00. The other boys also harvested fairly good yields of potatoes and it did not take much intelligence for any one to see that our projects secured those extremely attractive results, those dollars and cents that we all hear about so much but seldom see. We have not had time to talk potatoes for next year but there are many farmers who have already provided enough seed to plant from ten to forty acres.

Profit of $500
"When a boy makes a profit of $500 from a ten acre field of potatoes while his father makes minus $500 on a section of wheat, there are many parties who are going to do a good deal of thinking while the kid goes on telling the world how it was done. That boy has told his story to so many that I believe the school board or the state extension division should pay him a good bonus for the good he has accomplished. I will admit that I could not go into that neighborhood and make the business of growing potatoes look so attractive to farmers as that boy has done. No wonder that all of his uncles which are four in number and the farther across the road and a few other farmers to the north and south and east and west of his place are planting potatoes next year.

The total profits from our projects have not been computed yet but there is every reason to believe that they will reach $2,000.00 and if potatoes prices go up, it might reach the $2,500.00 mark.

"Besides the potato projects, we had one twelve acre wheat project, sweet corn and others. The parents were very vitally concerned with the results and it was through their help mostly, that the boys made the records. One boy who planted ten acres of potatoes did not receive sufficient backing from his father and did not secure such attractive results but as his father recognizes his error now, there is every reason to believe that he will be one of our best supporters next spring when the boy plants twenty acres of potatoes as is his intention now.

"Our results show up mostly in potatoes but if we can show the community that we can make good in that particular project, it has been prepared for work along other lines."

Finds Something to Do the Business

"I tried everything that I heard of for the stomach and bowel trouble and bloating, but got no permanent help until I struck May's Wonderful Remedy, and that did the business. AMERICAN WOMEN UNITE TO AID EUROPEAN COLLEGE STUDENTS

By NEA Service.
New York, Nov. 25.—A half million dollars, to be known as the "Student Friendship Fund" to pay for food, clothing and medical aid for young men and women students in European universities, is being raised by American students.

The plan is being pushed by club women and women educators under the leadership of Mrs. Robert E. Speer, national president of the Y. W. C. A., Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, and Mrs. Thomas G. Winder, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Herbert Hoover, Woodrow Wilson and presidents of many of the largest universities are members of the advisory board of the "Student Friendship Fund."

"The situation is considered desperate among European college students, thousands of whom are without a place to live during the coming winter months," says Mrs. Speer.

The relief work is to be directed by the World's Student Christian Federation, which last year administered student relief in co-operation with the American Relief Administration. More than 15,000 women students in Central Europe were given clothing and provided with a daily breakfast.

Of the campaign, Herbert Hoover said: "No greater service can be performed than to keep alive the institutions through which the real advancement and social recovery of Europe must arise."

teach these boys a lesson as to what they wanted."

"She looked at him a moment—timidly, yet thoughtfully. Then you are an actor—a person who stimulates what he does not feel?"

"Yes."

"And all the time you have been here you have been acting the schoolmaster—playing a part—for Mr. Barstow?"

"Yes."

"Always?"

"Yes."

The color came softly to her face again, and her voice was very low. "And when you sang to me that day, and when you looked at me—as you did—an hour or two ago—while you were entertaining—you were only—acting?"

Mr. Twing's answer was not known, but it must have been a full and complete one, for it was quite plain when he left the schoolroom—not for the last time—with its mistress on his arm.

He looked at her with questioning and troubled eyes.

"Do you wish it?" he said suddenly.

Somewhat confused, but more irritated by his abruptness, she replied, "Why not?" But when the day came, and before a crowded audience, in which there was a fair sprinkling of strangers, she regretted her rash suggestion. For when the pupils had gone through certain callisthenic exercises, admirably taught and arranged by him—and "spoken their pieces" he arose, and fixing his eyes on her, began Othello's defense before the Duke and Council. Here, as on the previous occasion, she felt herself personally alluded to in his account of his wooing. Yet she was also conscious, and as she thought, as inconsistently, of being pleased and even proud of his success. At the conclusion the applause was general, and a voice added with husky admiration and familiarity:

Beauty and joy—the bread and wine and all—
We have forewarned; our noisy hearts forget;
We stray and on strange altars cry and fall.
Ah, patient gods, be patient with us yet, And Pan pipe on, pipe on, till we shall rise, And follow, and be happy, and be wise.

SEASONABLE FOODS.
THERE must be something wrong with the people who do not enjoy the luscious muskmelon and the ray-mented watermelon, yet you find men who even dislike lemon pie, so it is hard to suit all tastes; however, "there is no loss without some gain," for there would be enough of such good things to satisfy all appetites if everybody wanted the same food at the same time.

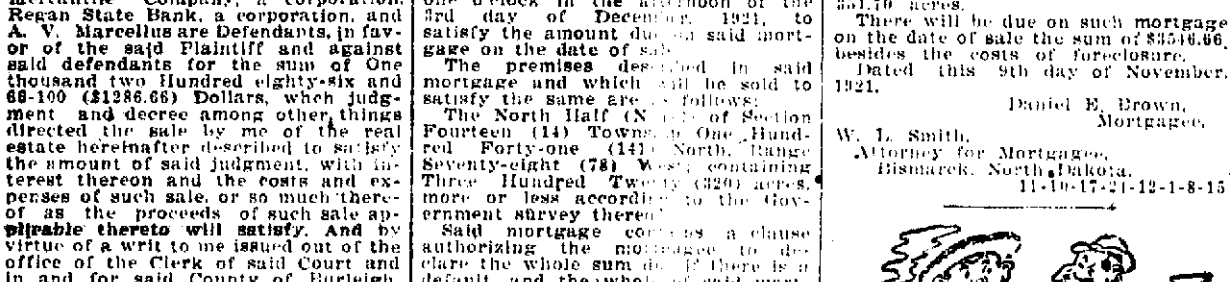

Orange Ice in Melon Cups.
This is really the nth power of serving, for each alone is delicious enough. Wash the small melons, cut in halves and scrape out the seeds and membrane carefully. Chill and fill with orange ice. Boil one cupful of sugar with a pint of water and the grated rind of an orange, add the juice of one lemon and the juice of four oranges, strain and freeze as usual.

Pimento Cheese.
A most delicious cheese may be prepared at home at a small fraction of the cost usually paid for such an article. Take one-fourth of a pound of good, snappy American cheese, put through the meat chopper, also grind with three hard-cooked eggs, three or four canned pineapples. Alternate the eggs and peppers through the grinder to save the juice of the pepper, season with salt and cayenne, add mayonnaise dressing to moisten, and put away to chill. Cover with paraffin paper and keep in the ice-chest. It never spoils, for it doesn't need freezing. This is excellent for the sandwich filling for hungry boys and men who carry lunches to school or work.

Fried Chicken With Boiled Rice.
Cut up the chicken for frying, add butter to the hot frying pan, sprinkle the seasoning in flour and roll each piece until well covered. Place in the pan and cook slowly, closely covered, until quite tender, then brown. The chicken will be much more delicious and moist than if fried brown at once. Heap a mound of well-cooked hot rice in the center of the platter, surround with the chicken, and serve with ripe olives.

Twin Mounds of Muffins.
Cream one-half cupful of butter, add one-fourth of a cupful of sugar, then alternately add three-fourths of a cupful of milk, two cupfuls of sifted flour, sifted with four teaspoonsful of baking powder and one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt; add one egg well beaten, mix and bake in gem pans. A cupful of well-flavored blueberries, or dates finely cut, may be added if desired.

Freckles and His Friends

By Blosser

Frederick and his friends were talking about the new school. "I've heard all," he said faintly. "I can't help it. I was here when you came in. But I want to tell you that I am content to know you only as you seem to be, as I have always found you to be—strong and what a day had when you were those who had a full knowledge of all you had been."

"Did you?" Do you know what I have been?"

Mrs. Martin had frightened, trembled a moment, and was saying her soul with an effort, "I don't know anything of you."

"Nothing," she repeated, with a mild, almost averted, and a quick dash. "I don't know anything of you."

She knew, and she knew, for the amusement of the house, and twenty-five cents a ticket. "That's my Johnny Walker," the man said, "I have been with all-round man, selected by Mr. Barstow, to Suite B. H.—Lucas Block, Phone 263."

Everybody will read with interest the statement of Miss M. E. Woodford, 1808 Elmwood St., Lynchburg, Va., who says:

"I don't believe anybody ever suffered from headaches like I did. The pains felt like an iron band was being drawn around my head and my temples would throb until I was driven almost distracted. I shudder when I think of those awful headaches. I had no appetite either."

"I owe Tanlac an everlasting debt of gratitude for entirely ridding me of those terrible headaches. My stomach has been toned up too, and everything I eat agrees with me now. Tanlac certainly brought me health and happiness."

"Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere."

CHURCH GOES ON TRIAL TODAY

Charged With Murder of Two Salesmen

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Harvey Church, charged with slaying Bernard Daugherty and Carl Ausmus goes on trial today. Church confessed to the crime after he was arrested in Wisconsin, according to the police, but afterward he repudiated the purported confession.

Daugherty, a salesman for an automobile company, went to Church's home here to deliver an automobile which Church had purchased promising payment on delivery. He was accompanied by Carl Ausmus. When the men did not return the company and police started a search for them. Ausmus' body was found buried in Church's garage and that of Daugherty in the river.

PICTURE WITH ALL-STAR CAST COMES TO CITY

Eltinge Theater to Present Affairs of Anatol Here Next Week

It has been the custom of photography producers to advertise their productions as played by all-star casts. This statement has been made so many times that the public has wondered just what an all-star cast means. It has been left to the Eltinge theater to demonstrate to the people of Bismarck what this really means in the showing of "The Affairs of Anatol" which is played by the greatest combination of screen favorites ever assembled in one photo play. "The Eltinge" for the last two days, has displayed in the lobby reproductions of Wallace Reid, Bebe Daniels, Theodore Roberts and Wanda Hawley, and these four along with Elliott Dexter, Gloria Swanson, Monte Blue, Aileen Ryer, Raymond Hatton, Polly Moran, Theodore Kosloff, Julia Faye, the other eight make up the twelve appearing in this Paramount production. The name of the director, Cecil B. DeMille, guarantees the beauty of the picture, for no director as famous has equalled the art of DeMille in reproducing richness and luxury in the photoplay. A short review of the story follows:

Anatol DeWitt Spencer's temper is ruffled because his wife makes him wait for breakfast while she is having her feet manicured and because she kisses him repeatedly before breakfast. The couple have been married only a few weeks, and both are happy. At the Green Fan Cafe, Anatol meets Emilie, who is dining with Gordon Brown, a wealthy banker. Anatol recognizes in Emilie his school companion and after dancing with her and learning that all the diamonds she wears were given her by Brown, he takes her home, resolved to lead her away from the primrose path.

Although his wife objects and spends most of her time with Max Runyon, a family friend, Anatol still but loses himself to Emilie, and when she deceives him after promising to throw all of Brown's diamonds into the river, he returns to her apartment and smashes up things generally after which he leaves Emilie to Brown. At an entertainment given at his home, Anatol's wife, Vivian, is hypnotized by an East Indian magician and when she removes her stockings in order to wade a stream the magician has fixed in her imagination, he carries her off in his arms and sends the necromancer adrift.

Anatol and Vivian go to the country to find peace. Meanwhile, Annie Eltinge has stolen certain church funds, intrusted to her husband and when he turns her from his door, she plunges into the river just as Anatol and Vivian appear in a skiff. They revive Annie who finds Anatol's purse while Vivian goes after a physician, she embraces Anatol and kisses him just as Vivian appears. She leaves Anatol to walk back home penniless, while Annie gives his money to her husband with the statement that an old maid had given it to her to help her out of her troubles.

Vivian refuses to be reconciled to Anatol and he goes forth in search of the wickedest woman in New York. He finds her in the person of Satan Synne, a dancer whose husband, a returned disabled soldier is in need of an operation which is to cost $3,000. She obtains the money from Anatol after a dramatic scene in which he learns that the supposed wickedest woman in New York is one of the most faithful wives in the world. He then returns home disgusted and patches up a peace with Vivian and both are content to live for each other.

"The Affairs of Anatol" will be shown at the Eltinge, next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday only. The picture will be shown in the afternoon at 2:30 and twice each evening at 7:30 and 9:15.

BRIDE'S PA TOO GOOD. Willesden, Eng., Nov. 25.—Brought before Magistrate Dent for breach of promise. Alfred Wilson said he became suspicious when the girl's father

FARGO TAKES STATE TITLE

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 25.—Fargo high school again took its place in the center of the state gridiron map yesterday when the local high school crew walloped the Grafton high school eleven, 22 to 6. In the state championship contest played here at DaCotah field.

It was a splendid battle of super-high school football warriors but Fargo had the better of the fight throughout the contest. Although outplayed almost from the start of the contest it was not until the final quarter that the Grafton team cracked and allowed Fargo to carry the ball over the goal line.

Ince Comedy, which is to be featured at the Bismarck theater on Monday, required a staff of clever artists, a crew of technical men, and several days of strenuous filming for its successful completion.

Photographing the nightmare scenes required the most intricate camera work that has yet been accomplished. The enormous roosters, standing over six feet high, were modeled in paper mache by the artists of the Ince moulding department, and are physiologically perfect in every detail.
